

Beech Class

Update:

In Beech Class we have been studying the map of London together to deepen our understanding of the Great Fire of London and where it happened.

We have also been looking at London as it is today, and the children really enjoy sharing their own experiences of London. As a home-learning task this week, we are encouraging the children to find out if they have ever been to London and if so, where they have been. If they have any photos of this, they can share them with us as this will help us with our map work. If they have never been to London but a family member has maybe, they could learn about this. These conversations really help to bring the subject to life and create a real buzz in the classroom! If no one has been to London another idea could be to research somewhere they might like to go one day.

They could write this out by hand and bring physical photos or share to the class email.

Thank you for your continued support,

Ms. Keogh and Mrs. Coventry
